

NORTH LAWDALE COLLEGE PREP

RESTORATIVE JUSTICE PROGRAM

North Lawndale College Prep equips its scholars with the skills needed to resolve conflict, reduce harm, and establish peace within the school community. The scholars that have received formal training in restorative justice practices at NLCP are known as our Peace Warriors.

Building upon the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., the Peace Warriors have been able to combat violence by introducing principals of peace and non-violence. Our mission is to broaden their reach and impact on the greater North Lawndale community.

Restoration. Justice. Peace.

Since its inception in 2009, 800+ students and staff have been trained as Peace Warriors.

There are currently 24 Peace Warriors from the 2021-22 school year.

An average of 4-5 peace circles are held at our two campuses, each day.

NLCP students have facilitated 31 Peace Warrior trainings at nearby elementary and high schools.

NORTH LAWDALE COLLEGE PREP

Our Mission

Prioritize a culture of peace to disrupt the cycle of trauma and violence that some students experience.

Add extra capacity to our Culture & Climate team to prevent conflict and disruption before it starts.

Ensure that our disciplinary practices promote restoration by growing our Learning to Rise and Peace Circle programs.

Expand our restorative justice programs beyond the school building by introducing the principles of Kingian non-violence to parents, community members and neighboring schools.

Our Reach

Our Peace Warriors have travelled across the country to advocate for and elevate messages of peace.

They have visited:

East St. Louis to launch at training site for East St. Louis High School and community.

Stoneman Douglas High School in Parkland, Florida to support school shooting victims.

Washington, D.C. for "March for Our Lives" rally.

Aspen, Colorado as panelists at the Aspen Ideas Festival.

New York City to shoot an anti-violence commercial, and more.
